EXCHANGE PAPERS.—We continue to receive by every mail newspapers containing our little card "To the Pub lic," and asking an exchange. Our offer in that has been

Mr. WEBSTER .- The despatches of this morn ing state that this eminent citizen is in Boston and enjoying good health.

Cuba.

Never before have we seen the humane and moral sensibilities of a public journalist so intensely affected as have been those of the venerable and respected editors of the National Intelligencer: first, by the attempt of a few of our fellow-citizens, upon their individual responsibility, to aid in the liberation of Cuba; and secondly and chiefly, by their total discomfiture in this attempt.

From that journal we learn that France and England have expressly guarantied to Spain their protection in the possession of Cuba; while a Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce confirms the report of a secret treaty in which the United States are pledged to preserve Cuba to Spain. This writer states, that "in the archives of our Government we have an engagement made, in 'Jackson's Administration, between the United States, England and France, to the effect that 'Cuba shall not be seized by either party, and ' that Spain shall remain in undisturbed posses sion of the island."

In the face of all this, of course no argument is expected to be offered in defence of the right of the people of that island to work out their independence, and certainly none in vindication of the right of any other people to give them aid in such an undertaking! Nevertheless, our Declaration of Independence sets out with the position that "in the course of human events. it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them " with another;" and proceeds to aver that governments derive "their just powers from the con 'sent of the governed;" together with sundry other vagrant and heretical notions of the rights of man.

That the treaties binding Cubs to the voke of such primary laws as these, we of course have not the temerity to doubt, and we bow with deference to the authorities we cannot gainsay!

If it be said that four hundred men are not that it is the very folly of rashness itself to invade disposition to object. If it be said that the people of Cubs have not yet made such demonstrations as afford a pledge of their desire to break from the thraldom of their masters, we are equally unwilling to enter into a controversy. But when we are told that England, France, and the United States, are pledged to protect Spain in its possession of that island, we at once yield to the impulse that bids us defy every such guarantee, and to menace the governments that dare usurp such a power! The will, on the part of Cuba, and her ability, with such aid as she can procure, are all the warrant requisite for the procuring her independence; and these three governments have not the power to resist her in such an effort. The great republic of the world contains too much of the democratic spirit to tolerate this unholy league; and while the people of both France and the United States would hurl from their high places the Administrations attempting to enforce its stipulations, the wounds of Ireland and of the laboring classes of England would bleed afresh, and England would find enough to do in the preservation of quiet within her own dominions. The revolutionary spirit that raged to excess throughout Europe a few years ago is not extinct. and the faint cries from Cuba, borne on the winds to the Eastern Hemisphere, would revive the smothered flames by which the monarchies of Europe are yet to be destroyed.

It was never a hope of ours, except through disaster could attend an invading army of four hundred men in Cuba; and could we have prevented their departure, gladly would we have done so. But even this certainty of defeat could not induce us to denounce their motives street is one hundred and twenty-seven feet. and invoke discomfiture upon them. Cuba and There are also large vaults beneath the street, her freedom are the same to us under all circumstances; and we shall continue to pray for her deliverance from the rule of Spanish tyranny, until the arrival of the happy day of its consummation. The darkest hour of the night heralds the near approach of morning. The present hour is not without hope-hope of a brighter morrow and a just revenge.

AN AMERICAN STEAMER.—The steamer Geor gia, which plies between New York and Chagres, has been a remarkably successful vessel. In twenty-one months she has traveled more than one hundred thousand miles, and in all that time has never paused an hour at sea, nor required the aid of a machinist or carpenter. Her first six or seven trips averaged a profit to her owners of from forty-six to forty-seven thousand dollars! We have obtained these facts from a gentleman attached to her.

MATANZAS. - The Argus arrived at Charleston from Matanzas on the 6th instant, with dates to the 29th ultimo. The Spaniards there express much contempt for the Creoles for inducing Lopez to undertake the invasion, and then deserting him. Americans at Matanzas were apprehensive for their safety, the Spaniards ing much excited.

A FORGIVING SPIRIT .- On Friday last a mar was sent to jail by Justice Donn, in default of payment for the maintenance of an otherwise uncared-for child. Yesterday his wife paid the amount in arrears, gave security in the sum of $80 for the future support of the little one, and took her husband to her home again. Now that is a wife as is a wife!

SHUSTER'S .- Seventh street, between D and na avenue, is to be a noble place of busisss. Shuster has gone there, and the fashionfolks will follow him. The Exchange Bank would follow our locating on Seventh street? fort on that day.

Pleasantry. MATTHEW ST. CLAIR CLARKE WAS ONCE inversation with the late British Minister at this capital, when the latter remarked: "You Americans have great aptness for this published: thing of annexing; I hope you will not select England in your future extensions."

"Speak softly, sir, softly," replied Mr. Clarke, with apparent earnestness; "if our boys once hear the thing suggested, your country is swallowed up."

The minister laughed a laugh of mingled pleasantry and ridicule. England could not be annexed! Great Britain controls the destinies of others, and her strength and power can withstand the world! All this is very good, but we are nowannexing her population at the rate of ten thousand a week. While this depletien is being made almost from the very region of her heart, we are propagating in her colonies such principles as will finally turn their affections from her. Her hierarchy is now in danger. It is an excrescence upon the face of a civil government, and must slough off, and with it will fall all veneration for her aristocracy. Should this and her monarchy fall, and the reign of anarchy appear impending, the United States can be of great service to her statesmen and people. If we do not then annex her, her people will at least wish the barrier presented by the broad Atlantic could be removed, to admit of an alliance so mutually profitable.

Boxes !- He is a funny nigger, and a good musician. While we write, he and his comrades are rehearsing some beautiful music at the Odd-Fellows' Hall, across the street. Our window looks right in upon them, and we hear every note they send forth. We have long known Bones. We danced to his music long years ago, on the shady side of the barn, and with bare feet. We admired Bones' music then and we admire it now. It is a gladdening kind of music, and reminds us of the good old Bones, the veritable Bones, who used to purchase happiness at so small a price. Poor old nigger he worked well while daylight lasted, but always welcomed the shower that brought him rest, and the approach of night; but most of all, he welcomed Saturday night! Bones received no wages, and seldom saw a smooth levy; yet Bones was a happy man, and happy was the group of little boys who were so much Spanish cruelty and oppression are superior to amazed at the skill of poor old Bones. He played with the old rib-bones as with castanets. He is gone now, but, as we then thought, he was worthy of imitation; and so think all the admirers of the counterfeit Bones whom we now sufficient to effect the liberation of Cuba, and hear. He is much followed, and thousands sit delighted at the music of his rattle, while the that island with so small a number, we have no delighted Bones, as of yore, grins a precious display of ivory, and makes all others laugh with him. It is innocent mirth, and he is still a good old fellow, is poor old Bones!

> To PRESERVE PEACH TREES .- We clip the following from this morning's Intelligencer. Its author is known to us, and is an aged, intelligent, and altogether reliable gentleman:

> "Clear the earth away immediately next to the trunk of the tree, down to near the root, and then place two or three lumps of unslacked lime, each about the size of a goose egg, next to the tree, and cover it over with a little earth. It will eradicate the worm, and in a short time give vigor to the tree. The lime should be applied when the trees are young, but will answer as well for older trees, by increasing the quan-tity of lime about one-third. From my expe-rience, once in three or four years is all that is necessary to ensure a vigorous, healthy tree.

> Gold.-Greeley sometimes deals in precious metals, and he exhumes some of it when he says of gold : "It is well enough in its way but if our people who have wandered to California in search of it could have been induced to devote their energies at home to the producon of iron instead, the country won been far more prosperous and happy than it is."

IMMENSE STORE .- The splendid marble dry goods establishment of A. T. Stewart & Co., N. Y., was opened in its full extent yesterday. It is described as the most beautiful and costly buildthe influence of a miracle, that any thing but ing ever erected for such a purpose. It is five stories high, and extends from Reade to Chambers street, fronting one hundred and fifty-one feet on Broadway. It fronts one hundred feet on Chambers street, and its length in Reade two hundred and seventy-eight feet in length, well lighted by numerous gratings, and so well finished that it is difficult for a visiter to realize that he is under ground. Below these, and extending under the whole building, are vast cellars, stored with goods not required for immediate sale. The average value of stock in the store is upward of two millions of dollars.

> VOCAL MUSIC.-Mr. Kemmerer has returned to our city after a most successful southern tour. He has been highly praised in the papers of the southern cities, and much good is said to have resulted from his labors. His plan is excellent, and very gratifying as well as improving to the children who attend his instruction. See the advertisement.

> SILVER MINE IN JEFFERSON COUNTY, VA. The Charlestown Spirit of Jefferson of yesterday

"A short time since we noticed the discoery of a silver mine on the land of the Messrs. McSherry, on the eastern side of the Shenandoah river, at the base of the Blue Ridge Since that time, Messrs. Wm. Medler and Geo. W. Cleveland have taken the trouble to have the ore or quartz tested by competent persons We can state, from our own observation, that the rock or quartz at this place is very abun-

The certificates of M. B. Pyne, G. R. Haeiss, and Samuel Steel are here given. They say the ore presented to them is silver, and contains 'nothing to prevent its being pure." The Spirit' adds :

"We have also conversed with Dr. Eichelberger, of this town, who has tested the quality of the ore, and he says that the yield is about seventy per cent. silver. We learn that the owners of this mine intend commencing operations in a very short time. Of the success of the enterprise we shall keep our readers

DEATH OF MRS. CRITTENDEN. -- We regret to on the opposite side of the street has assumed learn by a telegraphic despatch from Louisrance. This is a great square. ville, dated the 8th, that Mrs. CRITTANDAN, Business will flow into it. We knew what lady of the Attorney General, died at Frank-

We copy from the New York Sun the following account of the execution of Gen. Lopez. It differs in some respects from accounts already

At the fatal hour Gen. Lopes was brought out and ascended the platform with a firm step. His person was enveloped in a white shroud. The executioner then removed the shroud, and there stood the General in his full military uniform before the assembled multitude.

His appearance was calm, dignified and heroic.

Not a muscle quivered. He looked upon the preparation for death unmoved; his countenance changed not, and his whole bearing was firm and manly.

The executioner now removed his embroidered oat, his sash, cravat, and all the insiguia of his military rank, in token of disgrace.

General Lopez, with his hands tightly bound together in front, stepped forward, and in a strong, clear voice, slowly spoke to those around as follows: "I pray the persons who have compromis me to pardon me as I pardon them.

"My death will not change the destinies of Cuba." [The executioner, standing a little be-hind, here interrupted him in an insulting tone,

"Come, be quick, be quick."]

General Lopez, turning his head partly around, fixed his eye on the man, and said sternly, gritting his teeth, "Wait, sir." He then continued:

"Adieu, my beloved Cuba! Adieu, my brethren!"

The General then stepped back, and seated himself on the stool; a priest with the crucifix and taper on one side of him, the executioner on the other. The collar was then placed around the prisoner's neck. The priest now placed the crucifix between the General's hands, and just as he was in the act of inclining his head to kiss it, the executioner swung the fatal screw, and the head of the unfortunate man at the same instant dropped forward, touching the crucifix. He never moved again. There sat the body of one of the bravest men that ever drew breath, but a moment ago alive, now a ghastly corpse.

The execution was conducted in the most orderly manner and in perfect silence. No shouting or any other exhibition of applause was manifest. Whether this was the result of Whether this was the result of the news from New Orleans, or the express orders of the Captain-General, is not known. Immediately after the execution, Gen. Lopez's ody was taken down and privately buried.

The following paragraph from the New York Mirror, in relation to the execution of General Lopez, will be read with painful interest: "We have conversed with a gentleman who stood within a few feet of Lopez at the time of his execution. He confirms the account of the bearing of the victim at the scaffold, and also describes the mode of death as being more instantaneous than hanging. Lopez mounted the platform with a firm step, dressed in white, looking haggard and sad beyond description. The life and soul of the man was already gone before the executioner did his work. He was permitted to say a few words relating to himself permitted to say a new words relating to Armsey only; and these were in effect that he 'forgave everybody and wished everybody to forgive him. That he died for his beloved Cuba.' He was then seated in a sort of chair, the collar was adjusted, and by the touching of a spring, the weight of two thousand pounds snapped the neck, and his hands, which he held clasped before him fell whom his knees the only metion. before him, fell upon his knees, the only motion that indicated death. His body remained four hours, until his face became entirely black, exposed to the burning heat of the sun, and the burning indignation of the multitude. From this eye-witness of the scene, we learn that the feeling of hatred against 'the pirates' was intense and universal among all classes; so much so, that even the negroes who lifted the bodies of the victims into the hearse, at Atares, handled dled them roughly; and this gave rise to all the horrible stories of post mortem insults and muti-

NEW MODE OF LOCOMOTION .- The New York Tribune tells us of a new style of carriage to be used on common roads and in the streets of the city, to be propelled by the weight of a single wheels four feet two inches in diameter, with at the same rate. an elegant wire frame-work body, with seats for two persons over the front wheels, which are four feet in diameter. A speed equal to fif-and old Pennsylvania white at 91c. Sales of yellow corn and old Pennsylvania white at 91c. Sales of yellow corn at 64c. Rye 60@61c. Oats 34@35c. although it is designed to run but about ten miles per hour. This new carriage is the invention of a well-known mechanic of New York who proposes to make a public exhibition in the streets sometime during next week, when the utility of this novel mode of locomotion will be fully tested.

MONUMENT TO JENNER.—It has been proposed erect a Bronze Statue in London to Jenner, the great discoverer of vaccination; and it is further proposed, says the Boston Daily Advertieer, to aid the merited testimonial by contributions to be raised in that city. Previous to this discovery, forty thousand persons died annually in Great Britain with the smallpox, the nost loathsome of all diseases. The benefits of the discovery made by Jenner are world-wide HUNDRED-FOLD WHEAT.—We are indebted to Elliott's California Express for a sample of Cal-ifornia wheat of the tallest kind. The head is bout six inches long, and contains about one nundred kernels, most of them remarkably large and very plump. If the land in California will produce such grain as this, farming must be better business than gold-digging.

[Boston Traveller.

The first locomotive ever used in the United States is still in good running order on the Little Schylkill railroad. It was built in Liverpool (England) by Edward Bury. At that time it was necessary to send a man from England to put the engine in running order on the road.
It was but twenty years ago that Edward Bury's engine was placed upon our road.

THE APALACHICOLA FLOOD. - Speaking of the late storm, the Journal and Messenger says:
"By a gentleman from Apalachicola, we learn hat that city is now a heap of ruins. The tide ose some ten or twelve feet in the streets. washing away many buildings, and most of the others were unroofed by the wind. The streets ere filled with masses of rubbish, and fishes, and alligators, so as to render the atmosphere most insufferable. Several lives were lost."

MEXICAN SENATORS IMPRISONED .- The Rice Bravo says that the Mexican government has adopted proceedings against several Senators, including General Almonte, and other efficers, under an old Spanish law of 1813. These gendemen have been fined, some of them sent to the prison of Perote, others dismissed, and the house of General Almonte entered, and property removed to pay a fine, by a file of armed men. He complains loudly of abuse and outrage, and a good deal of public feeling seems to be excited. eep and angry discontent appears to pervade all parts of Mexico.

LAMARTINE, it is stated, received £8,000 for his "History of the Restoration," £1,000 for each volume. Madame Lamartine is said to be the translator of the work into English.

TELEGRAPHIC.

At Apalachicola, property to a very large amount has been destroyed, and the place wears a most gloomy aspect. Off the harbor a Spanish man-of-war was stranded, and several lives were lost.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—The U. S. steamer Vixen sailed from Pensacola on the 3d instant, to blockade the mouth of the Mississippi, and intercept any expedition that may attempt to leave with a view of invading Cuba. The Vixen has been lying at Pensacola for several days past, undergoing repairs, but the pressing na-ture of her orders has compelled her to leave without finishing them, and but one of her boilers is fit for use

The large and beautiful five-story brick building, at the corner of Seventh street and Louisiana avenue, has, since the completion of its walls, been the subject of universal admiration. We do not think that it has ever been surpassed by any similar building in this city, in either materials or workmanship. Yet, from the imperfect character of the ground upon which the northern portion of it stands, or other cause, a depression has become apparent that threatens serious results. It is not indeed impossible that from a fourth to a third of the Seventh street front will have to be removed and rebuilt. We are perhaps over-cautious concerning such things; but it has occurred to us that the attention of the Mayor should be given to the present condition of this wall. The contractors will no doubt use the best possible means to overcome the mishap, but they have no power to prevent the usual thoroughfare while thus engaged.

THE CUBAN INVASION .- That the Captain General had no legal right to execute the American citizens taken in arms in Cuba, that Lopez was seduced into the invasion of the Island by officers high in position in the Spanish army, and that Concha was cognizant of this stratagem, are facts that we firmly believe will be established before the world. There is a spirit of joy abroad at this moment in relation to the defeat and execution of these men, but Mr. Fillmore does not participate in it!

THE CAMPBELL MINSTRELS, at Odd-Fellows' Hall, have had full houses this week, and have made "a palpable hit," as young Osrick would say.

One CAPTAIN DE AHNA, so styled, called at our office on Monday evening, and pledged himself to a gentleman present, in the absence of the editor, to enter suit against us for libel. We shall be pleased to hear more about this suit, or from any gentleman disposed to back up this personage in a demonstration.

THE HUNGARIANS .- Captain Brich, Captain Lichtenstein, and Captain Bukovitz, late of the Hungarian army, are now in this city as delegates from one hundred and twenty-eight Hungarians who lately arrived from Shumla. We learn that they have been directed by Kossuth to advise with Mademoiselle Jagiello (now Mrs. Tochman) about the means of reaching the colony which General Ujhazi formed in lows, where they all propose to settle. There are fifteen Hungarian ladies with them, all married. The delegates were yesterday introduced by Major and Mrs. Tochman to the President, and cordially received by him. In answer to their salutations, the President expressed his satisfaction that they and their leader Kossuth have chosen this country for their home, and assured them that they will find friends wherever they may settle.
